THE BOSTON HERALD.

E. C. BAILEY, Editor and Proprietor. TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 5, 1861. 103 WASHINGTON STREET.

THE TERMS of the Boston Daily Herald, sent by mail, are Four Dollars per year. Shorter time in proportion. Payable in advance.

DR. DOW,

GRAND MEDICAL HOSPITAL,

No. 7 and 9 Endicott Street,

ESTABLISHED IN 1835, and widely known, and long tried by the afflicted.

DR. DOW'S PRINCIPLES IN MEDICINE

Are purely in accordance with the principles and experience of the most eminent physicians of the day. He makes no "new discoveries" in the healing art, but adopts only such remedies as have been tried and proved by the most eminent practitioners, and which are recognized by the profession in Boston to be the best.

CLAIMS OF HIS ADVERTISEMENTS;

what he says of his remedies, and of his skill in curing diseases, is within the bounds of truth and reason.

DR. DOW'S PRACTICE, is characterized by commonsense, and by the use of such remedies as are reliable.

RELIABILITY OF THE MEDICINES

which are put up under his direction is conceded by the public generally.

DR. DOW'S CHARGES

are the lowest at which a regular physician can afford to practice, and are always made known in advance.

NO SECRET MEDICINES

are used in his practice, but such as are known to the profession.

TO SHOW THESE STATEMENTS TO BE TRUE,

he refers to the following

TESTIMONIALS

from those who have the means and character of forming a correct judgment, and who have had the best opportunity of testing the skill of physicians. Many of these persons have called in any part of the world, others visited the Hospital, and others have written to him. All of them have been benefited, and are the subject of thanks and gratitude to the physician, and to further their expressions of confidence in his skill and integrity.

QUACK NOSTRUM MAKERS

Obtain their testimonials from persons who are unknown, and who have no character to lose. Many of these are mere common cases of ordinary disease, or else, feeling themselves cured by the use of the nostrum, they are willing to say anything in its favor. Others are induced by the most glowing and unreal representations to write letters, which they afterwards regret.

DR. DOW'S TESTIMONIALS

are from those who have had the best means of judging, and have been benefited in the most important cases, and who would gladly send many more testimonials if they could be published.

PHYSICAL DEBILITY.

They say Sanford's Ginger

DOW WITH PLEASURE.

A LEMON

REGULATING THE MENSTRUAL SYSTEM.

DR. DOW:

Sir,—If there is a superlative to what you call Dow's Female Cordial, I must use it in speaking of its merits.

DR. DOW'S FEMALE CORDIAL

has been used by the undersigned, and found to be a safe and certain remedy.

DR. DOW'S FEMALE CORDIAL

Always cures when directions are followed.

DR. DOW'S FEMALE CORDIAL

Is for sale at the Grand Medical Hospital, No. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston.

DR. DOW'S FEMALE CORDIAL

Is the best remedy for all those painful diseases peculiar to females, and can be relied upon in all cases.

DR. DOW'S FEMALE CORDIAL

Has been used in my practice for many years, and I have found it a safe and reliable remedy.

DR. DOW'S FEMALE CORDIAL

Is for sale at the Grand Medical Hospital, No. 7 and 9 Endicott street, Boston.

TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 5.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

On the outside of this morning's paper will be found the Inaugural Address of President Lincoln, delivered yesterday at the National Capitol. Mr. Lincoln makes no attempt at rhetorical display, but proceeds directly to discuss the great question at issue before the country. He denies the right of secession, and says he shall endeavor to perform for the entire people of the revenue and the protection of government property wherever it is found, and to keep the proposition of Mr. Crittenden—which has passed Congress—and the Constitution, by denying the right of Congress to interfere with slavery where it now exists. He recommends the people to call a National Convention to amend the Constitution, and submit it to the States as they think fit. On the whole, the Inaugural is a calm, dignified, and conciliatory State paper, and can not but be approved. It will be seen by the appointments of the cabinet officers of party, and not from those supposed to be influenced by those who are enlisted in a war upon the liberty of the States. But he will be sustained by the great mass of the people whose opinions he has not only republished, but has shown that he is equal to the emergency. While he will exert his influence to preserve the peace and harmony of the country he will not countenance those who are in arms upon the government. We have not the time now to make the observations we desire to set forth, but shall do so on some future occasion. In the meantime we commend this address to the attentive perusal of our readers.

TOWN MEETINGS.

Most of the towns in the Commonwealth held their annual meetings yesterday, for the election of officers and the choice of committees to take the matter of the fugitive slaves and other accounts of the meeting in several of the towns near Boston, are given below:

BOOK-KEEPING.

The knowledge of keeping accounts is too much neglected by both sexes. Nothing can be more important to a person who intends to enter into public business affairs, and a foundation for it can be laid in the schools as well as in the counting room. Sprigs and girls should learn as an elementary study, the theory of book-keeping, and practice it in their school days, to some book keepers or not, they ought to know enough to be able to determine whether a clerk who so seeks work for them do it properly.—Many an individual has been made a bankrupt because he had to rely upon a clerk to tell him whether his affairs were prosperity or not, and many a corporation has been swindled out of thousands of dollars, because the stockholders had not sufficient knowledge to detect a system of embezzlement which was carried on under their own eyes. How much more especially important it is to business men, that all females could not happen. The knowledge of bookkeeping by single and double entry is invaluable. We have known for the purpose which every to reach how to do it in a practical form, as it is to be learned from a teacher, and not common schools, do or rather should teach the principles of knowledge. But the easiest, best, and quickest way to learn how to do it is for a book-keeper to go into a counting-room, for there he sees the actual working of the principles he has learned upon to attend, business females with the principles of business, and of course a knowledge of system from a counting room which he can acquire in no other way. Pupils generally complain that learning bookkeeping is a study very much; and so it is, for no matter how good the teacher may be he cannot impress the pupils with the idea that they are actually trading, unless they have the actual transactions before them.

There is no reason for the purpose which every to reach how to do it in a practical form, as it is to be learned from a teacher, and not common schools, do or rather should teach the principles of knowledge.
